"DRIPPING WET" PLANK BEFORE COMMITTEE

SPOKESMEN FOR MANY DELEGATES IN MOVE

Repeal of Amendment and Immediate Modification of Volstead Act Sought by Group led by Walsh, Bulkley; Rejection Expected With Plan to Go to Floor; Fight Over Chairmanship Seen Today

CHICAGO, June 28.—A dripping wet plank pledging the Democratic party to repeal of the 18th amendment and immediate modification of the Volstead act was presented to the Democratic platform writers today by spokesmen for 20 states and territorial delegations with a plan to carry it to the convention if it is left out of the platform.

The plank, 140 words long, would pledge the party to prevent the return of the saloons and to safe guard dry states against liquor importation from wet neighbors. The "committee of nine" engaged in writing the platform took it under advisement but there were indications it would be rejected in favor of a beer declaration for resubmission of the 18th amendment.

BULKLEY IS SPONSOR

Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, Senator Robert J. Bulkley of Ohio and E. Brooke Lee of Maryland, sponsored the new wet plank. They announced they would present it as a minority report to the full resolutions committee if the platform writers rejected it. They declared they expected the full committee to adopt it.

The plank read:

"We favor the repeal of the 18th amendment.

"We demand that the Congress immediately propose such repeal to truly representative convention in the states called to act solely on that proposal.

PREVENT SALOON

"We urge that the Democratic party cooperate in the enactment of such measure by the several states as will actually promote temperance, effectively prevent the return of the saloons and bring the liquor traffic into the open under complete supervision and control by the states.

"We demand that the federal government effectively exercises its power to protect states against importation of intoxicating liquors in violation of their laws.

"Pending repeal we favor immediate modification of the Volstead act to legalize the manufacture and sale of beer and other beverages of such alcoholic contents as is permissible under the constitution and to provide therefrom a proper and needed revenue."

The sponsors announced that the platform committeemen from Colorado, Connecticut, Florida, Illinois, Iowa, Maryland, Michigan, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Wisconsin, Alaska, Hawaia and the Philippines would support their plank. This would give them twenty of the fifty five votes on the full committee.

STADIUM, CHICAGO, June 28.—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt decided today to stake all his presidential nomination hopes on the traditional two-thirds rule.

An hour before the convention met today the New York governor got his leaders here on the telephone and instructed them to abandon their fight for a special rule, whereby the convention would be asked to nominate by a majority vote if after six ballots no candidate was able to command two-thirds.

CHICAGO, June 28.—The fighting in the Democratic National convention—and there is plenty of it—moved out from behind closed doors today and into the open.

When the delegates repaired to the stadium today it was not to hear a lot of oratory, but to start the series of pitched battles preliminary to the main bout over the presidential nomination.

The opposition to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, most of it of the "last ditch" variety, appeared more confident than ever that they have him stopped.

SEVERAL WEAKEN

There appeared to be some ground for this confidence, for there were signs of cracking in a few delegations that had been counted solidly for Roosevelt. Mississippi was one. The Mississippians had a stormy caucus that lasted for hours and despite the fervent pleas of the Roosevelt leaders to stand firm, they postponed a decision. About half of them were for Roosevelt and the other half for Newton D. Baker and Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland. Iowa also showed signs of cracking.

However, the Governor still has by far more delegates in this convention than anyone else, perhaps more than all of them put together, and in race track parlance is still the favorite. But he has not two-thirds of the convention in sight at this time.

Gov. Roosevelt's retreat on the move to abolish the ancient two-thirds nominating rule left his leaders on the ground here troubled and crestfallen. They had burned their bridges behind them on that issue, asserting as positively as it is possible to do so that there would be no retreat. Even two hours before receipt of his telegraph abandoning the fight his leaders were still vowing that "it isn't true."

At that, they managed to salvage something from the wreckage of the rules fight. They will bring in a special rule today providing that the convention shall take six ballots and if no one—which means Roosevelt—is able to muster the traditional two-thirds, then the convention shall consider whether a nomination shall be made by majority vote.

FIGHTING SEEN

If that situation develops, there will be fighting aplenty, for having beaten it once, the proponents of the two-thirds rule believe it can be beaten as often as it is presented. But time will tell.

In some respects, the proposed special rule is more distasteful to the anti-Roosevelt faction than the original proposition of a majority nomination at the outset. They were saying today that it was equivalent to saying to a football team, "you have six downs to make the goal line and if you can't make it we will bring the goal post out to the middle of the field."

Every opponent of the New York Governor immediately interpreted his withdrawal as an evidence of weakness and they were stiffened accordingly.

SEE CRACK IN DAM

From Al Smith to "Alfalfa Bill" Murray they all saw in it the first big crack in the Roosevelt dam and said so in one way or another.

Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, floor leader of the Smith forces, issued a blistering statement about it.

"Mr. Roosevelt," he said, "can never stay put for even the shortest length of time. Those who have watched Gov. Roosevent at close range are familiar with his

JIM COX TO ASK CHANCE?

Report Ohioan, Defeated In 1920, Wants Another Fling At Presidency.

CHICAGO, June 28 — James M. Cox, defeated Democratic presidential candiate in 1920, wants another chance.

This was admitted today by friends of the Dayton O., publisher who declared that his hurried trip here Sunday was made partially in behalf of his own potentiality as a candidate.

Secret conferences were held last night with Ohio Democratic leaders when it was admitted that little pro-Cox sentiment is as yet to be among the various delegations.

Cox insisted to the Ohioans that the state's pledge to vote for Governor George White, favorite son, "as long as he has a chance to be nominated," will have his support to the limit."

$250,000 Blaze Sweeps Toledo

TOLEDO, June 28.— Thirteen fire companies battled for more than four hours today before they put under control a three alarm blaze which for a time threatened an entire business block and caused more than $250,000 damage.

Seven persons, four firemen and three civilians, were injured.

Patrolman William Bedacht discovered the fire in the rear of the Western Auto supply company building. First firemen to arrive on the scene were met by a terrific explosion that shattered windows in nearby buildings.

LIST OF INJURED

The injured were:

Fire Lieutenant Melvin Schroeder, 30, who sustained a wrenched back when he fell from a ladder while fighting the fire.

Fireman Ernest Fineski, cuts and bruises.

Fireman Robert Fitzgerald, 35, cuts and bruises.

Eugene Tracewell, 27, of Swanton, hand and face cut.

Harlan Bach, 21, lacerated face.

Charles Sholkey, 35, cuts and bruises.

The condition of Lieutenant Schroeder was considered serious. All were given treatment at local hospitals.

An explosion of paint or varnish in a paint store in the building was believed to have been the origin of the fire.

After firemen arrived on the scene, a second explosion occurred, sending pieces of shattered glass and debris over the fire fighters and the crowd of spectators assembled at the blaze.

The second explosion caused the injuries of all except Schroeder and Grant. They were hurt when a ladder fell from the side of the building.

Three stores in the building, occupied by the Weed-Colburn Company, the Postal Telegraph Company and The Buckeye Cigar Company, were destroyed.

Prompt action on the part of firemen prevented the blaze from spreading to other buildings on the block.

ARMY SEEKS FOOD, MONEY

Men Constitute Menace If Conditions Remain As They Are Leader Says.

WASHINGTON, June 28—Broke and hungry the bonus army today sent out a desperate appeal to the country for food and money.

Over the signature of George Kleinholz of Portland, Oregon, the new national commander of the marchers, the appeal called attention to the possibility of trouble. Kleinholz said the leadership of the army had maintained order thus far and would continue to exert all possible efforts to that end but warned that 20,000 hungry men inevitably constituted a menace.

GAS BLAMED

COLUMBUS, June 28 — Gas accumulating under the lower part of the structure was responsible for the disastrous explosion which wrecked Ohio's new million-dollar state office building recently and took a toll of ten lives, members of Governor George White's investigating committee reported today.

Despite the blast however, the committee reported the basic structure was unharmed and the building will be "perfectly safe" for use when the damaged portions are restored.

COUNTY TO DO WORK ON 7 HIGHWAYS

Nearly $18,000 to be Spent in Extensive Surface-Treating Program

TO REQUEST BIDS

Kingston-pk on Program to be Straightened

An extensive road improvement program in which nearly $18,000 will be spent has been planned by County Engineer J. Howard Sweetman and approved by the board of county commissioners, John W. Hay, Marvin H. Dreisbach and Edgar W. Beatty.

The plans call for the improvement by surface-treating of over 14 miles of road in the county and also the straightening of a crooked pike in Pickaway-twp.

TO SEEK BIDS

Notices calling for bids to be received at the county auditor's office July 28 will be published this week. The roads to be surface-treated are:

Circleville-Kingston Road No. 9, 5.45 miles,

Circleville-Stoutsville Road No 40, 2.76 miles;

Circleville-Lockbourne Road No 28, 5.37 miles,

Hayesville-Adelphi Road No. 11 (Whisler), .50 miles;

Harrisburg-Fairfield Road No. 20 (Orient), .30 miles;

Five Points-South Bloomfield Road No. 19, .32 miles.

There will be total of 14.7 miles of road improved in the county through the treatment which will consist of C. T. bituminous material and crushed gravel and stone. There will be approximately 92,580 gallons of the bituminous material used besides much No. F stone and No. 6 chips of crushed gravel and stone.

Work on this part of the program will begin as soon as the contract has been let.

TO STRAIGHTEN ROAD

The county commissioners and county engineer believe that the money will be well spent in straightening the hazardous Road No. 9 in Pickaway-twp. It will be straightened at its intersection with the Kingston-pk near the Dessel Kiger residence.

H. T. Link and Orren Dreisbach of Pickaway-twp, who own land which will be effected by the improvement were each awarded $500 for compensation and damage to their land in the straightening of the road.

There was some objection to this part of the road program. Marvin Dreisbach and Edgar Beatty voted "yes" for straightening the pike and John W. Hay, president of the board, voted "no."

Another part of the program is the abandonment of a part of Route 104 in Jackson-twp near the residence of John R. Fry. When this road was straightened a new portion of road was constructed, leaving the crooked part of the road still in existence. The commissioners are to view the site July 11 and a hearing will be held July 18, at which time objections to its abandonment will be heard.

Following the completion of this proposed program, the road situation in Pickaway-co is expected to be considerably improved.

LINDBERGH TO RELATE STORY OF BABY HUNT

To Resume Witness Stand As Trial of Curtis Enters Another Day

TO UNFOLD DETAILS

Betty Gow to Be Called as Witness

FLEMINGTON, N. J., June 28.—From the witness stand in the historic little courthouse here, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh was to unfold today the inner details of the wide but useless hunt for his kidnaped infant son on which John Hughes Curtis, indicted Norfolk, Va., ship builder, led him.

Curtis is on trial accused of "preventing and hindering" the capture of the abductors of the world's most famous baby as a result of his confession the story of his supposed negotiations with the kidnapers was a hoax.

BEGIN MONDAY

Testimony of Colonel Lindbergh who took the stand yesterday gave evidence of a surprising twist in the dramatic phase of the case.

It seemed to indicate a basis for the contention of the prosecution that Curtis actually was in direct communication with the baby-stealers.

Today, under questioning by County Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck, of Hunterdon-co, Lindbergh was to continue his story of how he sought contact with the kidnapers for Curtis, and just where the message that his golden-haired son had been found dead reached him.

Lawyers for Curtis indicated they would prove later Lindbergh was not with Curtis aboard a boat at sea looking for the kidnapers at that time, as was then reported.

Probably the direct testimony of Lindbergh will be completed by noon. Defense counsel estimated it would take at least three hours for Lindbergh to be cross-examined.

It was the intention of Captain Ryman Herr, Curtis' chief attorney, to incorporate in the court record if possible the text of the original ransom note, found in the

RAIN POSTPONES MARBLE TOURNEY

Games in the national marble tournament to be have been played Tuesday by Rolland Scott, Jr., have been postponed until Wednesday morning on account of rain.

That fact, however, does not prevent the local youth from having a real time. He took part in a parade Monday and was pushed down the boardwalk in rolling chairs led by the American Legion band, service clubs, city firemen, police, lifeguards and Boy Scouts. Despite the postponement of a mammoth water show Monday night Scotty enjoyed himself during the afternoon by jumping big waves in the Atlantic ocean as they came into shore. The entire party was to leave at 2 p. m. Tuesday on a big boat to do some deep sea fishing.

TREGO ARRESTED

Wesley Trego of Commercial Point was arrested Monday afternoon at the residence of William Seymour, Islandrd, by Deputy Sheriffs Fryan J. Oster and Muler Kessell on a charge of selling intoxicating liquor.

Trego will be given a hearing before Judge J. W. Adkins.

OHIO TRUE TO WHITE, 3 OTHERS

Delegation Proves Threat and Enigma of Convention While backing 'Sons'

REFUSE TO TRADE

Baker's Name is Again Brought to Fore

CHICAGO, June 28.—Wisecracking and confident, Governor George White of Ohio, assumed personal control of his "favorite son" campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination today and declared he is "a real candidate."

A demonstration held for him at the Palmer House by the white-clad, white badged Franklin-co Democratic Glee club sharpened his wits and gave him new hopes of being chosen as a dark horse candidate.

"I have absolutely no intention of withdrawing," he told newspaper men in a serious mood for the moment.

CHICAGO, June 28.—Ohio's delegation to the Democratic National convention stood true to the four "favorite sons" today and became both the threat and enigma of the convention.

Holding his delegation in line for Governor George White, Newton D. Baker, James M. Cox, or Senator Robert J. Bulkley, State Chairman Henry Brunner of Mansfield, threw a scare into the Roosevelt camp and kept other leading candidates completely puzzled.

FARLEY ANSWERED

"What about Ohio?" asked James A. Farley, manager of Franklin D. Roosevelt's campaign, at a secret meeting last night where he tried to muster strength in the fight for nomination. He was told by his counsellors that Ohio has not swerved from its determination to vote for White "or any other Ohioan who can win."

Buckeye prestige also boosted as the anti-Roosevelt forces, boasting that the New York governor has been stopped, talked of Newton D. Baker, noted Cleveland attorney and former secretary of war, as a compromise candidate.

Among the missing were Rev. and Mrs. David W. Vikner, Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Nyhus, and the Rev. and Mrs. E. Sovik, all members of the Lutheran mission.

The bandits have been unusually active in Honan province and along the Hupeh border of late, cutting the Peking-Hankow railway near Hinyangchow [illegible] resisting troops sent to suppress them.

DERRINGER BEATS BURLEIGH GRIMES

NEW YORK, June 28.—The pennant chances of the St. Louis Cardinals were revived today by the return to form of their big right-hander, Paul Derringer.

"Dizzy Paul," formerly one of the Cards' best pitching bets, had won only three games against seven defeats until yesterday when he regained his wizardry and held the Cubs to five hits, winning 4 to 1.

The victory was particularly pleasing to the Red Birds because the losing Chicago hurler was their old playmate, Burleigh Grimes, who had made them look like monkeys earlier in the season. St. Louis took the series, three games to one.

This was the only game played in the National league. In the American loop, the Athletics passed the idle Senators and jumped into third place by bumping the Red Sox off twice, 15 to 8 and 9 to 4. George Earnshaw and Tony Freitas were the winning hurlers.

Roy Johnson, who drove in seven runs in the first game, hit three homers for the Sox but got little help from his mates. Jimmy Foxx and Doc Cramer each got four hits for the A's in the opener.

Izzy Goldstein limited the White Sox to five hits and pitched Detroit to a 9 to 3 victory with the aid of homers by Davis and Stone and five Chicago errors.

BIRDS RAINED OUT BUT GAIN IN RACE

COLUMBUS, June 28.—Although inactive, Columbus' standing in the American Association pennant race today was bettered by a few points as the Minneapolis league leaders dropped a game to Milwaukee, 2 to 1.

The Birds scheduled affair with Indianapolis last night was rained out and they are to meet the Indians this afternoon.

Indianapolis is only one game behind the Red Birds and if they should win from Columbus, they would be tied with them for second position in the league.

Standings today were:

Minneapolis	40	30	.571
Columbus	41	31	.569
Indianapolis	40	32	.556

If both Minneapolis and Columbus lost today, the percentages tomorrow would read, Minneapolis .563, Columbus, .562 and Indianapolis, .562.

END SEEN FOR OHIO RAILROAD AND INTERURBAN OPERATIONS

COLUMBUS, June 27 — Local passenger train service by steam railroads and interurban operations—including passenger and freight service—by electric railways are on the wane in Ohio

Because of the inroads made by private automobiles, motor busses and trucks upon their patronage which, in former years, had been quite profitable from a monetary standpoint, officials of nine steam railroad and electric interurban companies have been compelled, within the past year, to apply to the state utilities commision for permission to discontinue passenger train service or to permanently abandon all interurban operations

FINAL ACTION NEAR

Order acceding to the request of the applicants were issued by the commission in six of these cases during the past seven months Final action on the other three applications will be taken after public hearing, scheduled to be held in July, are completed .

There is every reason to believe that all three applications will be granted.

Of these nine applications, three came from the management of steam railroads who wished to curtail passenger train operations in order to halt or materially lessen the heavy financial losses incurred in connection with traffic operations over a period of years.

The other six applications, originated with officials of electric interurban concerns which, prompted by a similar motive, desired to permanently abandon all operations over all, or part, of their respective lines.

On New Year's eve, the West End Traction Company discontinued its interurban service between Youngstown and Levittsburg, by way of Girard, Niles and Warren.

OTHER FOLLOWED

The Western Ohio Railway Company, as lessee, and The Hancock Railway Company, as owner and lessor, January 16 abandoned all interurban traffic operations over their lines in Hancock, Allen, Auglaize, Shelby, Miami and Mercer counties, passing through Findlay, Bluffton, Beaverdam, Lima, Wapakoneta, Sidney, Piqua, St. Marys, Celina, Minister and Loramie.

On the same date, the Findlay, Arcadia & Fostoria Railway Company, as lessee, and The Hancock County Railway Company, as owner and lessor, discontinued all operations over their roadbed between Findlay and Fostoria

The Detroit, Toledo & Ironton company, on April 9, ceased operting passenger trains between Springfield and the Ohio-Michigan state line.

The Findlay Belt Railway Company abandoned, May 12, that portion of its interurban line extending from Findlay to a point 9.8 miles east of that city This road was a branch of The Cincinnati, Sandusky & Cleveland Railroad Company.

On June 1, The Wheeling & Lake Erie Railroad Company discontinued all of its interstate passenger train service, including those which operated between Zanesville and Toledo, via Harmon; between Cleveland and Brewster, between Chagrin Falls and Falls Junction; between Massillon and Brewster and on its Steubenville and Carrollton branches.

OTHER HEARINGS

The commission will conduct a public hearing July 12 relative to the application of The East End Traction Company for authority to abandon operations between Youngstown and the Ohio-Pennsylvania state line, by way of Campbell, Struthers and Lowellville

A public hearing has been assigned by the commission for July 21 concerning the application of The Columbus, Delaware & Marion Electric Company for permission to abandon operations on its interurban line between Marion and Bucyrus

The application of The Pennsylvania Railroad Company for authority to abandon its passenger train service on the Walhonding branch, extending from a point about one mile north of South Loudonville, Ashland county, to the main line of the P C & C and St. L Railroad at Coshocton, a distance of 45.7 miles, will be accorded a public hearing by the commission July 28

Ohio became the puzzle of the convention because it remained loyal to Governor White, who apparently is not considered a serious aspirant for the nomination by other delegations, while all other states clamored for Roosevelt, Ritchie of Maryland, Speaker Garner of Texas, or some other leading candidate.

REFUSE TO TRADE

Proving Farley's fears to be justified, Brunner told International News Service that no consideration can be given to trading Ohio's 52 votes to Roosevelt for the vice presidential nomination for Governor White "because that would be violating our harmony agreement with Baker, Cox and Bulkley."

The turn toward Ritchie by the anti-Roosevelt delegations did not excite the Ohio crowd a check-up disclosed. While other delegations talked Ritchie, the Ohioans continued to talk White.

New Baker strength was reported to the Ohioans in Virginia, West Virginia, Alabama, Mississippi, Indiana, Iowa and Florida delegations, but Burr Congwer, Cleveland delegate, and other Ohio friends of Baker continued to obey instructions against starting any activity in his behalf.

FIFTH IN PICTURE

While four favorite sons were being given Ohio's loyalty, a fifth entered the picture Occasional presidential talk was heard for Former United States Senator Atlee Pomerene, Ohio's candidate in 1928, and who is scheduled to place Governor White's name in the running at this convention.

nursery of the Lindbergh home near Hopewell, N. J the night of March 1, when the baby was discovered missing.

TO CALL NURSE

It was unlikely that Betty Gow, Lindbergh nursemaid, would be called as a witness for another day or two. She was to be asked to tell of how she put the child to bed on the fateful night, pinned his blanket to the crib, and finally how when she looked into the nursery a couple of hours later, she heartbrokenly gave the alarm when she saw the baby had vanished.

Lindbergh already has told how Curtis described the supposed kidnapers to him and plans for ransoming the baby were speeded when Curtis said unless negotiations were completed quickly, the abductors' gang threatened to sell the baby to "highjackers."

Today he was to finish the story of the agonizing hours spent in the futile quest of his lost son.

Liquor Revenue

FOR a number of reasons revenue derived by the Canadian government and the provincial governments in the dominion is of interest to the people of the United States. It has a bearing upon several domestic issues.

Many Americans are curious concerning these Canadian statistics because of the current proposals that beer be legalized in the United States to produce revenue much needed by the federal government. The dominion figures furnish a basis for estimates as to what the United States might expect in the way of revenue from legalized beer heavily taxed.

Canada's liquor revenues will start others below the international boundary to wondering what percentage of them come from the pockets of visiting Americans No doubt the total would run into the millions.

Last year the dominion government derived $43,263,871 in revenue from the liquor traffic, 10 per cent of total receipts. The depression was reflected in a $16 000,000 drop from the 1930 total. But these figures do not tell the whole story, as each of the provinces, with the exception of Prince Edward Island, levies a provincial tax on liquor sales.

The Province of Quebec collected $8,262,000 from this source in 1931, more than a fifth of its total revenue. In four years Ontario, which caters to a large American trade, has collected $43,000,000 in liquor taxes. The British Columbia levy has averaged $3,500,000 during the last 10 years.

Compared with this Canadian revenue is the $11,695,267 collected by the United States in taxes on distilled spirits and a small sum in customs revenues from legally imported wines and spirits.

Farm Crops and Prices

MANUFACTURERS of farm machinery are not in accord with all the policies and proposals relating to the tilling of the soil under adverse economic conditions. In fact, they seem to differ with most, if not all, of them.

If their spokesmen speak for all of them, they think the return to the soil of jobless city workers the height of folly, farm subsidies futile and bad, and anything that blocks the mechanical advancement of agriculture fatal.

Farmers and consumers may agree with Leonard J. Fletcher, president of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers, in his prediction that "any attempt to hold more people in any industry than are needed for the most economical production will result either in a need for continuous government subsidy or a material decline in the standard of living for all those engaged in the industry." But his logic on the subject of subsidies is not quire clear.

He professes opposition to farm subsidies and in the same breath advocates a controlled volume of production with a high tariff wall. What is the difference between these forms of paternalism, which put money in the farmers' pockets through artificial prices, and an outright subsidy.

When the farmers create shortages of their products by reducing their acreage tariff protection will help them, but as long as domestic agriculture produces more than the home market can consume no tariff wall, no matter how high, can help them.

The Motorist Pays

IF there were any moter vehicle owners who were under the impression that they would be plucked of only a few small feathers by the new federal tax program they have probably learned the whole truth ere now.

Separately a penny a gallon on gas, a penny a quart on lubricating oil, a small percentage on the manufacturers' price of cars, parts tires and tubes seem light touches. But it is estimated that these add $258,000,000 a year to the cost of automobile ownership and operation. After the motoring public has complained for years of being discriminated against the matter of taxation the federal government comes along and takes another $10 a year out of its already thin bankroll.

Those who did not know that the national and state government encouraged and fostered the ownership and operation of automobiles would interpret the heavy tax penalties imposed upon them as confiscatory and restrictive, in intent Certainly they are not conductive to wider ownership and more intensive operation

Politically the car users cannot retaliate immediately, since both major parties were equally responsible for this further exploration of their pockets, but many a candidate for congress next year will find it expedient and popular to come out against the continuance of these painful levies.

"EMBERS OF LOVE"

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

COPYRIGHT 1931 BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Young and beautiful Lily Lou Lansing aspires to an operatic career, but her moderate circumstances necessitate that she go to business and study music evenings. Wealthy Ken Sargent, whom Lily Lou loves, becomes angry when she insists upon practicing instead of seeing him and discontinues calling. Lily Lou grows listless and overworks trying to forget him. She goes to her parents' home in Woodlawn for a rest.

They lay on the raft, in the sun, Lily Lou indolent, not even breathing hard after the swim.

CHAPTER SEVEN

Her mother tried to make her happy. Told her which of the new people were "nice"—which weren't. The possibility of Lily Lou ever being part of the Sargent crowd never occurred to her. They were different. Outsiders. Sometimes she brought home little gossipy stories about them. How someone had seen them, all drinking cocktails, out of cocktail glasses, right on the front porch. The girls, too! And somebody saw two of the girls playing tennis with shorts on, and it certainly looked terrible!

Dad told about the crowd coming into the store for cigarettes.

Lily Lou felt rather sick. She thought of them, all these friends of Ken, hurling orders at Dad, and Dad, with his horny, slow hands, reaching for the packages they asked for, deliberately ringing up the sale on the antiquated cash register, his lips moving as he counted out the change. . . .

Well, let them laugh! What did she care?

Swimming in the warm waters of the shallow lake was a delight. Lying on the sand, or sunning herself on the gently swaying raft moored out in the lake, was health giving. Lily Lou's pallor began to disappear, she gained weight, began to feel alive again. Her magnolia skin took on a deeper, richer hue. Once more singing was a joy. Studying came naturally now. She decided to stay a while longer, to ask for a short leave of absence.

She did whatever they asked her. Sang in the church. Sang for the Ladies' guild. Nothing was too old fashioned, too sentimentally popular. She gave them what they asked, sang "The Rosary" with the fervor of a great theme from a great opera. Remembered the old hymns. Sang whatever they wanted. "My, but Lily Lou has improved a lot," they said.

Dad was so happy to have her home in the evenings. She had always been his favorite. She sat with him on the little front porch in the warm darkness.

Just behind them mother rocked, silently, in her old wicker rocking chair, her long slim feet in their neat black shoes keeping time as the rockers rocked back and forth, back and forth.

It was so peaceful, so quiet. Lily Lou felt like a little girl again. Soft with love for them. Strong with hope. A little tremulous with wonder . . . planning stage entrances, planning costumes for big appearances . . . This was the way to soak up strength, to renew faith in oneself . . . To come back home, and be able to look back and see how much you'd progressed. . . .

They sat on the little porch, Dad with the old dog's head on his knee, mother almost invisible behind the honeysuckle. Lily Lou just a pale light, her white dress luminous.

"Hello . . . is that you, Lily Lou?"

Ken Sargent. He must have walked. No sound of the car. He was right there, standing on the little path at the foot of the steps.

Lily Lou clutched at her throat. Swallowed hard. "Ken? I heard you were up here! Awfully nice to see you. . . . Mother, Dad, Kentfield Sargent. . . ." She managed to speak naturally.

But she felt light headed. Sick with the shock of it.

He bowed to her mother, shook hands with Dad.

Lily Lou looked at the faint grayish blur that was Ken's face. The dusty fragrance of the roses in the little front garden swept over her in almost overpowering sweetness.

Now that Ken was here, it was perfect. The days were dreamy, rich with warm summer fragrance, the nights were enchanted.

Lily Lou was a burning brand of energy. She was up mixing cakes, doing the cooking in the kitchen, even before her mother was out of bed. She no longer minded the slow starting wood range, the kettles of water that had to be heated on top of the stove. What are a few inconveniences, when you're home?

She never wanted to sleep. She was never tired. She hardly cared to eat. She was so gay, so wildly, thrillingly alive.

Her mother liked Ken. She thought he was different from the rest of the summer crowd. Dad liked him, too. The others had gone home. Ken had lingered on for fishing.

"For fishing," he said. "That's as good excuse as any, isn't it?"

"Did you know I was here?"

Ken laughed delightedly. "Now why do you suppose I came up here at all?"

"I don't believe you."

"But it's true—it really is."

She wouldn't believe him. She wouldn't let herself believe him. When he came to take her riding she kept him waiting. Postponed meetings with him. Sat at the little golden oak upright piano practicing, practicing . . . even her mother thought she overdid it. . . . "Lily Lou, you came up for a rest, dear. I think you ought to go out for a little ride with young Mr. Sargent like he wants."

But she wouldn't go very often. She was intoxicated with this new feeling of power. She was strong She could work. She wouldn't lose her head the way she did in April. She'd show Ken Sargent. . . .

Their relationship had changed. Now it was he who looked up to her. He told her how lovely she was . . . quoted vagrant bits of poetry. . . .

"The clustered softness of your waving hair,
That curious paleness which enchants me so,
And all your delicate strength and wonderful air. . . ."

Sometimes she didn't understand all he said, but it flattered her . . . she remembered some of the words. She knew that Peggy Sage, with all her father's money, hadn't been able to excite his admiration as she, who didn't even try. . . .

They lay on the raft, in the sun, Lily Lou indolent, creamy skinned, not even breathing hard after the swim. Ken was fair enough to burn an unbecoming angry pink, and he wasn't a strong swimmer . . . Lily Lou had the best of him again.

"I'm not much good, am I?" he asked. "It's a funny thing, the second generation never amounts to much. Now take my dad. He fought for what he's got. He's wonderful. But he wants me to go on where he left off, and I. . . . I'm no good—"

"Ken, you MUSTN'T say that—"

"Oh, it's true. Now if they'd just let me do what I want . . . Get out with the ships, instead of fussing around that darned old office . . ."

"I know, Ken." Lily Lou patted his hand gently. She didn't know how it had happened, but things had certainly changed. It was he who needed her, even more than she needed him.

At least she kept it hidden. He couldn't.

Still, sitting on the porch, waiting for him at night, she could hardly bear it.

Doctors Study Ductless Glands in Search for "Fountain of Youth"

Investigations Begun Twenty-Five Years Ago Have Enabled Medical Science to Define and Treat Several Maladies Whose Causes Formerly Were Not Known.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health New York City.

EVERYBODY is interested in maintaining youth and health. From earliest times men have searched for the "Fountain of Youth" and even though they didn't find it they did discover other wonders of the world.

It is about twenty-five years since we were startled by the announcement of the discovery of the ductless glands in their relation to the life processes. Many false claims were made, of course, and there sprung into being various fads and cults promising everlasting youth.

Medical science has disproved such unwarranted claims, but interest in these glands has stimulated much experimental work. Valuable information has been added to our knowledge of these important glands. It is definitely known that the various glands of the body have important functions, and that any interference in their normal activity produces serious results.

The Various Glands

There are several varieties of glands. Those which manufacture secretion and have no ducts or canals to carry away the secretion, called ductless glands, have a decided effect upon growth, development, health and the general well-being of the body

The thyroid gland in the neck is ductless and has an internal secretion of a substance called "thyroxin." Decrease or entire absence of this secretion results in an unpleasant condition known as "myxedema," in which the face is swollen, the skin is dry and rough, and the hair falls out.

Myxedema is found in adults and children. When children suffer from this affliction they are called "cretins." They show retarded physical development and are mentally backward

The parathyroid glands also are ductless. There are four of these glands and they are neighbors to and closely associated with the thyroid gland it is only within recent years that we have known much about them When their secretions are interfered with or destroyed, a disease called "tetany" results In this ailment there is a decrease in the amount of lime in the blood, and this produces marked spasms of the muscles of the body.

Addison's Disease

In a recent article I spoke about a terrifying ailment known as Addison's disease, and pointed out that this disease is caused by a disturbance of the adrenal glands. These, too, are ductless glands and they produce an internal secretion called "adrenalin."

Addison's disease is characterized by marked muscular weakness The skin becomes unusually pigmented and changes in color, all the way from a bright yellow to a deep brown or black. Until recently Addison's disease has been fatal.

The pituitary gland, the pineal gland and other ductless glands influence the general mechanism and health of the body. Disturbance in any one of them causes definite changes in growth and development. Growth may be so stimulated as to create giants, or so retarded as to create dwarfs.

It is hoped that in future years science will completely master these baffling and important glandular disturbances as the search for the "Fountain of Youth" continues.

"It Takes a Heap o' Telephones to Make a House a HOME"

With apologies to Edgar Guest, of course, but comfortable living today means having a telephone right at hand when you need it. If you had only one electric light bulb, you wouldn't call that electric light service, would you? Of course not.

Why then, deny yourself the convenience of having an additional telephone upstairs, in your kitchen, or beside your bed? The cost is so very small that it can be measured in pennies per day.

Look around you now. Don't you see a spot where an extension telephone would fit perfectly? Just call our office and we'll arrange for it.

EXPECT 75 PILOTS IN CLEVELAND RACE

CLEVELAND, June 27.—Nearly 75 pilots are expected to participate in the 1932 transcontinental airplane derby to be staged in connection with the national air races next August.

Sixty-one pilots completed in the event last year, but new rules have been set up for the derby, permitting a larger list of entries. As a result the event will probably become the greatest mass competitive flight in the history of aviation.

Under the new rules, all planes licensed by the Department of Commerce are eligible to compete. According to present plans of officials in charge of the air jamboree, entrants will be permitted to start for the finish line at the Cleveland airport here, from both the Atlantic and Pacific coast

Heretofore, the starting line has been on the Pacific coast.

Two sections will be set up, officials of the air meet said. One will be known as the Pacific Division and the other the Atlantic Division. The eastern fliers, according to plans, will take off from the Atlantic seaboard on August 21, heading for a mid-continental point, such as Dallas, Tex. The Pacific fliers will likewise hop off on the same day and head for the same point.

There at the mid-continental point, the two groups will meet and begin the final leg of the journey to Cleveland. Officials plan to have the race terminated here on August 27, the opening day of the air meet.

Both men and women fliers will be eligible to compete in the classic in which prizes totalling $20,000 will be awarded.

Communistic Scourge Is Felt Among Bonus Army

WASHINGTON, June 28.— Taking advantage of the dissension in the ranks of the "Bonus Army," Communistic groups today started a campaign for control of the 20,000 veterans encamped here to seek their bonus.

Two known Communist organizations, the joint committee of Workers ExService Men's publication of a small single sheet newspaper which they distributed by the thousand among the marchers.

WATERS IS OUT

The paper appealed to the marchers to stay in Washington until the bonus is paid, called for equal treatment of white and negroes, and urged that the rank and file take over control of the marchers, throwing out the old administration which already has been upset by the ousting of Walter W. Waters as national commander.

There was but $600 in the army's treasury today, little more than enough for one day's food supply. Members of the army were leaving town in increasing numbers but nearly 300 reinforcements arrived today, including 180 from San Francisco and about 100 from Brooklyn N. Y., leaders expected about 700 from the south tomorrow and John Page, one of the Communist leaders, left for Charlottesville, Va., today where he expects to recruit, he said, between 1,200 and 2,000 marchers by the end of the week.

SIX DETAINED

The intelligence officers of the bonus army detained six men whom they charged were Communists for city police. After an investigation they were released. The men were Louis P. Walcher, 44; Joe Wacilotti, 37 of Passiac, N. J; Thomas W. Plunkett, 36, negro of Washington; William Odler, 37, of Philadelphia; William Meltzer, 21, of New York city and Clarence Boyington, 37, of New York City.

At bonus headquarters the leaders were moving today to bloc efforts of the Communists to take control and an order was issued by Thomas Kelly, acting commander, directing the men to steer clear of a movement initiated by George Alman, of Portland, Ore, for a parade down Pennsylvania avenue.

OHIO'S CR[illegible] IS BENEFIT[illegible]

Heavy Rainfall Over Entire State To Do Much Good; Nearly 2 Inches Here.

By International News Service

Harvest hopes of Ohio farmers were at high tide today following the heavy rains of yesterday while some sections of the state were repairing damage caused by the downpour.

One village, New Burlington, near the Greene-Clinton-co line, was virtually isolated by the rainfall for a time. The village general store was flooded and the overflowing streams sent water into the second stories of some houses in the low-lying part of the village.

Xenia, 10 miles to the north of New Burlington, also reported minor damage. Four feet of water flowed in South Detroit-st there, inundating cellars and first floors of homes.

A. R. Tuttle, head of the U. S. Department of Agriculture office at Columbus, said the rain did "an immeasureable amount of good" to Ohio farm crops. He said that truck gardens would benefit most greatly.

Tuttle explained that the wheat crop was matured too far to be aided much by the rain but that it materially helped the corn crop.

The unusually heavy rain which has fallen in Pickaway-co during the past two days has totaled 1.92 inches, according to measurements taken by Dr. H. R. Clarke, official weather observer.

INVITATIONS FOR ELKS DANCE RECEIVED

With the rain, Monday there came a shower of picturesque invitations for the Elks dance, Friday evening. It is planned now to make the event a real annual summer Soltice Dance and much enthusiasm has been expressed over the innovation.

For a moment Tuesday, the Democratic convention, golf, gardening and other strenuous summer athletics were at a standstill, halting while their devotees planned what apparel they might wear to the dance Friday, and just who their escort might be for that gay night.

Planned as a real Fourth of July celebration, the dance holds—according to the committee—all kinds of delightful surprises, such as unique favors, stimulating decorations of Red, White and Blue, not to mention meeting all your friends of the winter dancing season there.

For no good reason at all, but just because folks will eat, even in the hottest month, a sporting room full of food will be provided, where, at the nominal charge of a few cents, one may await upon appetite.

Perhaps the most important promise is that of a good orchestra. "The Grenadiers," a twelve piece orchestral band which, according to the National and Columbia Broadcasting Companys excels in either the sweetest melodies or the peppiest jazz. Will they harmonize? Ask the committee.

A dance suitable for all the members and their families and friends, has been planned, so that all ages may enjoy this new festivity.

DEMOCRATS

indecisiveness, but they are glad that this issue has exhibited these qualities to the nation.

"The people of the country have had two enlightening demonstrations of Gov. Roosevelt's lack of loyalty—to a personal promise made to Jouett Shouse on the permanent chairmanship, and—two—to a principle which he originated and approved only to abandon for reasons of political expediency."

But there was another side to it. The Roosevelt leaders, although feeling they had been left out on a limb, claimed that in the end the Governor's decision to abandon the fight would help him. It demonstrated, they said, that Gov Roosevelt put party harmony above his personal fortunes and had showed a willingness to make a sacrifice for the common good of the party.

DELEGATES IN HAZE

John W. Delegate himself appeared somewhat bewildered about what it all meant, and generally reflected the view of his leader.

Another innovation which the Roosevelt forces will attempt in the convention is the nomination of the condidates first and adoption of the platform later Since time immemorial, the platform has first been adopted and then a man nominated to run on that set of principles. The Roosevent leaders plan to change that, if they can, by nominating first and then providing the platform on which he will run.

There was a pretty row on this last night. So much opposition developed to it in the rules committee that only by Michigan, a Roosevelt state, switching at the last moment were the Roosevelt leaders able to jam it through by a vote of 25 to 24.

The change in this whole situation concerning candidacies since Saturday has been marked.

On Sunday, after the withdrawal of Senator J Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, the Roosevelt leaders were militant and exceedingly confident. They were storming the delegations of other favorite sons, urging them to "get aboard" the Roosevelt bandwagon while there was yet time to reap some benefit by it. They worked hard on Missouri which is pledged to James A. Reed. They worked hard on Virginia, committed to Ex-Gov Harry F. Byrd, and on "Alfalfa Bill" Murray's Oklahoma delegates They tried to get a break in Ohio But the allies stood firm.

TABLES TURNS

Today the shoe was on the other foot to some extent While the Roosevelt leaders are still trying to bore from within the favorite son delegations, the allies have started a little boring of their own The cracks that have appeared in the Roosevelt armor in Mississippi and Iowa attest to that.

The Ritchie leaders are very active, unobtrusively so, but working hard.

One of the Maryland Governor's lieutenants informed International News Service today that they have delegates in sixteen Roosevelt delegations who are "coming to us" after the third ballot. For strategical reasons he declined to name the states.

Friends of Newton D Baker and of Melvin A. Traylor, Chicago banker, are also doing some boring. The Illinois delegation voted last night to present Traylor's name to the convention, and it will be done by Michael Igoe.

Today will see the first big test of Roosevelt strength on the convention floor over whether Jouett Shouse is to be permanent chairman, as agreed on months ago, or whether Senator Thomas J Walsh of Montana, picked by the Roosevelt forces, is to supplant him.

Shouse's supporters claim that Gov. Roosevelt personally okeyed the arrangement whereby Senator Barkley was to be temporary chairman and Shouse permanent chairman.

Mayor Hague openly accuses Gov. Roosevelt of repudiating a "gentlemen's agreement" in the matter

This the Roosevelt leaders deny. themselves agreed to was the arrangements committee should "commend" Shouse to the convention.

It was only a few days ago that the Roosevelt forces came out in the open with the proposal to displace Shouse and put Walsh in the chair. They considered Shouse 'too close' to the Smith-Raskob organization.

Al Smith stated Saturday that he would take the platform "if necessary" in Shouse's behalf. If he does there may be some fireworks, for Smith is in a fighting mood.

The Shouse forces claimed before the convention met today that they have a majority for him, but the Roosevelt leadership did not concede it.

NEWS OF HOMES AND HOME FOLKS

Published by STEVENSON'S

VOL. 3. NO. 26 Tuesday, June 28, 1932

It doesn't take very much salesmanship to sell a customer on the idea of buying a good inner-spring mattress. The good judgment of the buyer will do the selling. One day last week a certain Roundtown professional man came into this store and asked about mattresses. We got a little personal and asked about the weight of the person that would occupy the bed It was not idle curiosity that made us ask such personal questions, but we wanted to recommend a mattress that would give complete satisfaction. After gaining the information desired, our customer purchased a Stearns & Foster spring-filled mattress This is the one that has the INSULO pad over the spring construction It prevents the cotton from working down into the springs You'll never feel the spring construction while sleeping on a "LENOX" Nor will you find the springs on the inside of the mattress getting out of shape, either Pretty broad statements? All right come in and we'll be only too glad to show you the WHY and the HOW of a GOOD INNER SPRING MATTRESS And we'll show you too that you can afford to rest your weary bones on one of these fine spring mattresses, for the price is only $23.50

Speaking of mattresses, we are reminded that a party recently told us about having a husk mattress on a bed We can't imagine anyone having such a mattress for sleeping purposes We've been in the business for 16 long years and we've never purchased one made of husks With fairly good quality felted cotton mattresses at $7.50—full-size and weighing 40 lbs—we can't understand why folks would hold on to mattresses that are so old and hard as husk and excelsior Of course we have other mattresses for less money but they are made of cotton that is not felted, or a combination of cotton and cotton felt While bedding prices are so low, why not look at your mattress and if it is not in good order get a new one Restful sleep is the best medicine that you can give your body.

During the past week two customers remarked that they needed belts for their sewing machines and did not know where to get them until they read in RTT that we kept them in stock.

When Barton Walters returned from the National Republican convention a few days ago, Glen Geib, editor of The Herald, sent Pat Kirwin out to see him for a story When Pat returned he was asked what Mr. Walters said. Pat replied, "Nothing." "Well" said Geib, "Keep it down to a column."

A good friend of ours dropped into the store a few days ago and informed us that as he did not know that we sold carpeting he had placed an order elsewhere That surely was our tough luck This tale is mentioned because we want folks to know that we have a stock of carpet samples and are prepared to give you prices on covering the floors of your home with modern carpets

Have you seen the new patterns in the Quaker felt-base rugs? Talk about dreams! Drop in and take a look

There was a time when only the rich could afford a box-spring and mattress on which to rest their weary bones That day has passed into history The day of high priced bedding has gone and the day of good bedding at reasonable prices has come Take for instance our box-spring and mattress combination for only $29.85 If you can't sleep on one of these outfits there's something wrong with your conscience The same might be said about the 'Lenox' or the Slumberon, both of which are spring filled mattresses The "Lenox" sells for only $23.50 while the "Slumberon" delivers at $34.75 Or if you don't want to go quite that high take the mattress off the box-spring outfit and we'll deliver it for only $14.95 Don't ask us to go any lower in price on inner-spring mattresses for we are afraid of the quality. We know positively that the ones mentioned in this paragraph are O. K.

With harvesting and threshing in our midst, we'd suggest that the men folks take over the cooking, especially if it is done on the old-fashioned coal range. If they won't throw up the job unless a Perfection, Florence, Alcazar, or Pyrofax range is installed immediately we'll miss our guess GOOD oil cook stoves, with three burners for as little as $17.50.

How's Joe Moth and his tribe getting along in your house? Are they living high on your woolen and fur garments? Why provide a meal-ticket for them when you can clean them out with KEYSPRAY? Don't wait for them to eat holes in your clothing—use Keyspray now as a preventative 'tis good moth insurance

Professor Fetherlin of Round town High school, while selecting stage material from the students asked an applicant if he had had any stage experience This is the answer that came from the student: "Well, I once had my leg in a cast"

Boy oh boy, but it's nice to sit out on the front porch on one of our gliders during the warm evenings They're so comfy Yes and they're so stuffy too Some folks think that they are too pretty to leave out on the porch at night for fear that dampness will affect them Not at all If you are afraid to let them get wet, the cushions are removable take them into the house And the prices that prevail this year! Say we've never seen them lower

Do you inhale?

"Like a stepchild"

..a question generally avoided. Why?

DO you inhale? Why has this question been treated "like a stepchild" in cigarette advertising?

It's a subject vital to you—for you do inhale—we all do—every smoker inhales—every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette.

Do you inhale? A simple question. But silence on the subject—may be full of meaning.

Lucky Strike has dared to raise this question ... because certain impurities concealed in even the finest, mildest tobacco leaves are removed by Lucky Strike's famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

Do you inhale? Of course you do! Then this vital message is for you!
